Record book sales

Today I sold another book! Someone found my blog on internet and ordered book!! Great news, already we have sold 23 book and given away more than two hundred!

Does any one know exactly how many book sales are needed to get on best-sellers list? Can we included copies given away?

I am going to be rich and get my buttocks fixed! Happy happy day!

BREAKING NEWS

Mariela Neagu, my darling colleague in the EC Delegation in Bucharest, has been appointed Secretary of State for Child Protection. Finally we got rid of the man! She was for seven years the driving force behind the EC Programmes that pretended to reform the Romanian child protection. She has been very close to me for several years and we have explored our needs together. People who describe her as gay or as a stupid dyke are just being simplistic, she is much more and our relationship is much more than that.

Congratulations Mariela! I love you!

I am delighted that Marinela Neagu is now the Secretary of State for child protection in Romania. Her many years of networking and always being on the same side as the people in power has eventually paid off for her. I can think of several better persons for this important position in Romania, but none who deserve the perks of the job so much. Well done Prime Minister Tareceanu as with Marinela we know the children will be kept in the system in Romania and out of foreign homes and hands.

Thank you

A big thank you to all my friends for sending me posts to put on my blog. I will add all these tomorrow, except the one from **** (you know who you are!). It is not nice to say such things about my book, and about the things I was supposed to have done when I worked in Roumania. It is very easy for you to make allegations of improper conduct against me, but you do not know what happened in the privacy of a hotel room. I took girls out of the orphanage for weekends in a hotel often it is true, but if it was something improper it would have been the same girl each weekend, would it not? The fact that I took different girls to stay with me in my hotel room each weekend was a private matter, and nothing happened. I am allowed to admire the beauty of a teenage girl when she showers, am I not? There is no crime in this, and anyway the girl you spoke of was over the age of consent and nothing was wrong, just two consenting adults exploring their sexuality. So please don't write to me again, I thought you were my friend

Roumania-forexportonly

Welcome to my blog, which I wrote to help publicise my new book (my only book actually, but I thought it sounded better that way!). My name is Rolie, and I worked for the European Commission until I had my trouble which I am not ashamed of now because everybody knows about it. I had a problem with paranoia, I was seeing characters from comic books following me, and I had to take extended leave from the Commission to allow me to get back to normal, which I am now nearly.

I brought my expenses claims file with me from my job, and I was able to work out from that where I had been for several years before (or at least where I was supposed to have been, but let us not go there!). As part of my therapy I was encouraged to write down all the things from my past, and the result was a book that I call "For export only". I got the name from a bottle of beer that I was drinking one night, and I thought that it suited the thing I was trying to say, that adoption is not good and that children should not be adopted, especially not by foreigners in another country. It could be possible maybe that children could be raised in a culture that is not same as their own, or even worse, it is possible that the bloodline of Dutch and German people could be contaminated greatly by gypsy blood from Roumania. If the child was adopted by Dutch couple it is possible that nobody would know that they had gypsy blood, because the name of the child would then be same as the adopting couple. In future, it might be that maybe my child will marry such gypsy and not know that it is gypsy, therefore contaminate my family with gipsy blood. So altogether, we must work to keep these children in Roumania, in institutions if necessary, but never to be adopted outside of Roumania (possibly in Africa maybe, but they do not have money to raise their own children, never mind Roumanian children, so is not a problem right now).

I brought my book to publishers in Brussels, but they know nothing, they tell me it is not good enough for publishing. They are ignorant and stupid, especially the man in the big place near Parliament, you know who you are! Ignorant! I tried many places, but all are stupid or maybe the ignorant man has already contacted them all and told them not to publish my book. In any case they do not understand how important is my book and how many millions will buy it if it is published.

So, I made a new plan. I speak to my friend Rupert and get his advice. He already has a book that is published and maybe he knows some publishing company that is not stupid. He tells me that he has used "vanity publishing". I have not heard of such company, but he tells me no, it is not company, it is when person publish book themselves, ignorant people call it vanity because they do not understand. He made a nice book but was expensive to publish, but he show me how the charity he was working for paid for publishing, although they did not know it was his book, they think is just printing reports. Now he has a book, and he can sell it and make millions!

So, I asked him, how much money did you make from book? Nothing he said, nobody buy it except my family. Why is that? I ask him. Because they do not understand, he says, but he is not worried. He says that he bring book to peoples offices in Brussels when he has meetings, and give them present of book, and they think he is brilliant person for writing book. He give away many hundreds, nobody reads, but everybody think he is brilliant!

Very good idea, I think, I will make the book and find some money in European Commission to pay for print. But nobody will agree to pay. So I ask my therapist, and she say to go ahead and pay myself, is important to get the story off my chest. So that is how the book happened.

Not many people buy the book yet, just about 20 persons from internet and one goes into shop in Brusels where book is, but I know that when stupid people in newspapers make publicity for the book, many millions will sell and I will be rich.

If you want a free copy of book, write to me at European Commission and I send you one, but only if you promise to read it! Also if you go to Commission offices there are many in boxes beside my desk and you can take on for free if you wish.

When will the interest of the child be finally at the centre? Not yet obviously, because the book of Roelie Post makes clear how easy this principle of the Convention on the Right of the Child is put aside. And replaced by the wishes of a few gay women at the heart of the European Commission and in Bucharest. With this the de-institutionalisation process in Romania was frustrated and again the power of the institutions was restored, creating career opportunities not only in Brussels but in Romania as well. Already many families were ready to take children out of the orphanages, where they often lived in dire circumstances, to take them into their family. But now we have stopped all this. And the story goes on, in this is a long book to read unless you have a lot of patience.

What is the EU about? About the Rights of the Child, or the pressure of the Romanian civil service and European commission staff?

Roelie Post publishes a remarkable book. A book about stopping Romanian children from adoption. A book, that when one reads the first chapters, overwhelms you with boredom. but when you realise that this book was written for therapy exercise you understand more fully and forgive Roelie for the content and presentation. Unfortunately for the undersigned I can not, it is just too boring and full of errors. I even hoped that no similar boasting and personal book had been written by the sort of researcher as Roelie Post at the time in Korea and now in China. Roelie Post dares to complicate a simple issue at a level that can compare with the works of Myan Hertz and the movie Uphill Gardener. Naturally such reporting in general does not receive a lot of media attention, because of its so full of wrong assumptions. If you read the book, you find out why. A nest of scorpions of gay and European Union interests interwoven with political and social actors, and the large demand for adoptable children, creates indeed a problem functioning that until now made many good careers. As a result the discussion remained in the margins of society. The introduction of the book about a mini-breakfast conference of her children concerning this issue illustrates in my opinion that she has gone far beyond the reality of life and reduce everything to baby talk. Best regards, Hilbrand

I have only just begun reading Roelie's book. I cannot stomach to complete it to write a full review. For now, I can say: This is much rubbish but very well bound in plain cover for anyone interested in vanity publishing. It is "an insiders" view of the corruption and bureaucratic failures by Rolie Post and the European Commission, and between the lines we can read of the waste of European funds by "experts" like ms Post. Those of us in the industrialized world who think adoption is a win-win way to 'save" and 'rescue" babies need to read this and see what forces of bureaucracy can do to work against best interests of child! Every movie star should be MADE to read it as punishment for drug offences! Thursday, April 05, 2007 Mirah Riben

Even if this book is not going to change the world, or Romania for that matter, or have any effect on the thirty persons who bought it. Many of them were officials not using their own money! "Good things happen because bad people fail to act", you did. Noroc Monday, March 19, 2007 8:16:00 PM. See you Saturday darling xx

I read it over the weekend: forget Hans Cristian Anderson if you get real fairy stories like this! (I do not mean any disrespect to gay persons for using word "fairy", you know that Rolie darling). I could not put it down till the very last page. Respect, Roelie and others who worked on this. (Is that ok Rolie, do you want me to say other nice things, just email me if you do. This shows how well of how the lobbying nexus can work in Brussels, threats and all, as children's lives are cynically disposed of between the "In" files and the "Out". To hell with the best interests of child rubbish, let us show how to build careers in Europe and Romania. Few players emerge well from this story and some are out-and-out black hat villains. There is even one with a long cloak and black hat!!! I think I remember that night Rolie, was it the night we drank brandy all night in Bucharest? Wishing you well in your recovery, we will have other nights out in Bucharest! March 02, 2007 5:40:00 PM

As a former European Commission official, I know that it is not obvious to write such a book. It is courageous and necessary to put this story on paper, and the therapy will bring you to normal living and maybe even back to a similar job (but without the stress) in the future. Well done Roelie! Thursday, March 01, 2007 11:17:00 AM

Bravo Roelie. I am delighted that you managed to join the ranks of the vanity publishers. I also wrote a book, and it helped my career very much. I was even luckier, I did not have to pay for having the book published, I was working for a "charity" that had plenty of money and they paid the printing bill. You had to pay from your own pocket, but do not worry, it will be worth in in career terms eventually. When your recent problems have been forgotten, and the facts around what we did in Romania have been fudged with time, you can put on your CV that you wrote as book and they will be impressed! Like you, I gave my book away to everyone I met, and they assumed that I was learned and wise and this gave me many opportunities for advancement. As you know, I would never have got as far as I did without this kind of clever ploy (of course the patronage of Emma helped also, but the book was important too). This will also happen for you; do not worry about the content (you didn't obviously!), none of them will read it, but they will assume you are an expert on child welfare. Worked for me! I am delighted to see that the Author has taken the time to put this book together. While it is not well designed and the content lacks structure and an adherence to the facts, it is well bound and will not fall apart if it is opened several times. Well done Roelie! Hope you are better soon. Brian xxx Sunday, February 25, 2007 4:20:00 PM
